From Yesterday's Evening Edition.

ATLANTA:

ATLANTA, JANUARY 22, 1873.

The First Senatorial Ballot.

The first Senatorial ballot this morning, as will be seen from our legislative report, resulted in an aggregate vote of 209, of which 43 were given in the Senate and 166 in the House. Gordon lead largely, receiving 93 votes or only 12 short of enough to elect, 105 being required. Stephens ranged next, getting 56, thus needing 49 to elect. Hill received 31, a smaller vote than we thought. Fielder got 17. Akerman received the radical vote, 12.

In the Senate Gordon got 20 out of 43, or a majority of the Democratic vote, which numbered 39. In the House Gordon got 73 against 85 Democratic votes for the other candidates, lacking 13 of getting a majority.

Gordon has made a handsome start.

An immense feeling of interest clusters around the next vote. It is impossible to tell how it will go.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

SENATE.

TUESDAY, January 21, 1872.

The Senate met at 10 A. M. and was called to order by the President.

Mr. Mathews, of the 25th district, moved to reconsider so much of yesterday's journal as relates to the passage of a bill entitled an act to extend the provisions of the act to encourage the manufacture of cotton and wool, so as cover the manufacture of iron and iron furnaces.

In support of his motion Mr. Mathews thought it was laying a bad precedent to make such exemptions. This iron manufacture was a paying business, and it was unfair to the interest of the people of this State, who were struggling with a load of debt on which the interest even was burdensome. If this was a paying interest capitalist would invest in the enterprise any way, and thus he opposed it.

Mr. Brown opposed the reconsideration of the bill. We had a better iron country than Pennsylvania, while, at the same time, the iron interest of that State was worth more than two or three times the cotton crop of Georgia. It needed a stimulant to encourage capitalists to embark in this business. If this was done it is easy to perceive that Georgia must become one of the richest States which followed this plan. A lesson could be learned by us to our practical benefit.

Mr. Steadman also hoped that reconsideration would not be allowed. The object of this was to diversify our pursuits. It was tangible evidence to capitalists of our own and foreign countries that we wanted them to come among us, settle here, invest in our lands, and help us develop our resources. It was an invitation to the better class of emigrants, and nothing, in his estimation, could be done to be of more practical advantage to the ultimate good of our State than this law. He therefore moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table. Carried.

Mr. Knight moved to reconsider the bill passed on yesterday in reference to the return of wild lands through the Ordinaries of the counties. Mr. Knight thought the bill too expensive in the workings of its details, etc.

Mr. Reese thought the law a good one. It was a bill in which less trouble and less expense was incurred than in any other plan. He had tested the practical workings of the plan by making estimates, and was satisfied that there was no feature in the bill which did not do ample justice to the State, and would prove a convenience to the tax-payer. The law, as it stood at the last session, was a practical confiscation of all wild lands, etc.

Mr. Kibbee opposed reconsideration. He had introduced a bill at the last session which had for its object the payment of the taxes in the county in which the land lay, and to give them the right to assess the tax, and, in the event the land was sold it might be sold in the county. He was of the opinion that instead of simplifying the payment of the taxes it had worked as a hardship, and he favored the bill as it stood, and hoped the motion to reconsider might not prevail.

On the vote being taken the motion to reconsider was lost.

Mr. Wofford, chairman of committee on internal improvements, reported back several bills to the Senate.

Mr. Winn offered the the following resolution—That a joint committee of 5 from the Senate and 7 from the House be appointed by the respective officers, to whom all questions pertaining to the amendments of the State Constitution, who should have power to report back to the General Assembly by bill or otherwise.

The rules were suspended and the resolution taken up, but on consideration was referred to the judiciary committee.

Bills on second reading were taken up and referred to the appropiate committees.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

A bill to amend an act incorporating the Camilla and Cuthbert Railroad—passed in 1868, and to allow the extension of the same to Columbus via Cuthbert. The Committee on Internal Improvement reported adversely to the passage.

Mr. Hoyl, in moving to disagree with the report of the committee, said this road was one much desired by the people living in the section through which it would pass. State aid had been given from Camilla to Cuthbert, and as the State had at one time given aid to a contemplated road from Bainbridge to Columbus, and this was never built, it was easy to perceive that if this charter was extended on the Cuthbert and Camilla Road to Columbus via Lumpkin—that no effort would ever be made to build this route.

It was a measure which would develop a most valuable part of the State, and he asked this aid in the interest of the whole State. It would be far from his desire to ask aid for a project which did not have for its object the advancement of the whole State.

On motion, this bill was laid on the table, and made the special order for to-morrow.

On motion of Mr. Kibbee the two houses agreed to go into an election for United States Senator, at 12 M., to-day.

A bill to incorporate the Georgia Iron and Coal Company. The Committee on Internal Iprovements proposed an amendment. Agreed to and bill passed.

A bill to incorporate Cedartown and appoint commissioners. Committee reported favorably and bill passed.

A bill to appoint and prescribe the duties of a board of commissioners of Mitchell county. The committee reported favorably and the bill passed.

A bill to create a County Court for Habersham county, and define its jurisdiction. Not acted upon.

Message from the House stating that body had passed several bills and had concurred in the Senate resolution to bring on the election of United States Senator at 12 M. The hour of 12 having arrived the President announced that the next business in order was the election of United States Senator, and the Senate was now ready to receive the names of candidates.

Mr. Harris announced the name of Hon. Benj. H. Hill.

Mr. Estes announced the name of General Jno. B. Gordon.

ATLANTA:

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 22, 1873.

The Atlantic and Great Western Canal.

We call the attention of our readers to THE CONSTITUTION'S Washington specials this morning. They give good news of the great enterprise above mentioned, and also other important information.

Joe Jefferson's Rip Van Winkle.

Joe Jefferson's Rip van Winkle is notable enough to devote a little editorial attention to.

That an actor should make a world-wide fame and a large fortune in the playing of one simple character, is itself worthy of remark. No change, no versatility, but a persistent repetition of one role for years, and with it unending interest in novelty-loving theatre-goers, constitutes an extraordinary dramatic experience.

Jefferson is a stoutish man, passing into the later years of life. He has a large and mobile face. His voice is an ordinary one, and has not a single one of the accepted stage properties, save a remarkable capacity for being heard, accompanied with an almost unvaried quiescence of tone. Nine-tenths of his utterances are made in a conversational accent—rather below a medium elevation of voice. Hardly a passionate outburst of feeling occurs. There is no stage strut, no declamation, no straining for effect, none of the ordinary artificialities of dramatic personation. There is no glitter, no tinsel, no pomp, but all simplicity, quiet, ease and monotony, but a monotony that never palls and is delightful.

Where then is the mans power? Where is the secret of his marvellous hold for long years theatrical fame and profit? Representing an unlettered, uncouth, drunken, amiable, jolly old Dutch vagabond of a past age, talking in rude lingo, dealing in the simple incidents of village life, with an entire absence of dramatic pretension in the whole role, the personation is really one of the most finished exhibitions of true dramatic art ever performed.

Jefferson plays the drunken illiterate Dutch vagabond to life, and that is all of it. It is simply a perfectly true and natural representation, done so quietly, so easily, so truthfully, so easily that art is exhausted. Every motion, every word, every action, is just what it should be. The dramatist, of course, has had to make an interesting character. But Jefferson has crystalized the charatcer into life. The author's genius and the actor's genius blend to make up the exquisite performance.

From the time old Rip comes on the stage, until the curtain falls the packed audiences, in sympathetic rapport, hang enraptured on the gliding like episode of the simple Dutchmans uncouth but touching career of dissipation, domestic frost, and his pathetic return to his home after his twenty years of slumber. From roars of laughter to quiet and unsubdued tears the auditors pass, and this under no fierce straining after fun or drenching strains of woe, but simply beneath the inspiration of humor as quiet as true grief, and of pathos that never appears so touching as when most grotesque.

That this soft-talking actor in such an odd, ridiculous old part, should so rivet his fast aggregations of hearers, keeping up the public interest at the cost of its pocket, in his simple rendition year after year, is a marvel in theatrical experience, and shows a consummation of art as rare as it is deservedly successful.

It has been said that our Atlanta people are not appreciative of the drama. The failure of mediocre companies to draw paying houses here has confirmed the idea. But Jefferson has had as fine audiences as ever gathered anywhere. Patti, Forrest, and Nilsson, drew crowded houses. Genuine genius never fails to draw. We therefore opine that the fault is not in our people, who always patronize a good thing, but in the performance that fails to draw because it is without merit.

One thing is certain, and that is, that our citizens rush like unanimous droves, regardless of cost, to the really good actors and singers—the first-class artists. And those who don't win our patronage must explain away this solid appreciation of undoubted excellence before we will admit their complaint.

The Senatorial Contest.

To-day, probably, ends the long, eager contest for the most glittering position in the gift of the State. [illegible] columns discussion of the claims of the various candidates without any indication of preference. This has been in accordance with our idea of the neutrality that a party paper should observe between friends. A party journal should represent the whole party, and not any man or set of men.

We have given all a fair, full showing in THE CONSTITUTION. Perhaps no contest was ever more thoroughly discussed. The position, character, views and capacities of the candidates have been most exhaustively ventilated, and are fully understood. The aspirants have made careful and deliberate statements of their convictions and purposes.

While we do not propose to urge the cause of one, or take sides between the competitors, we desire, in accordance with a previously announced purpose to make some general remarks upon the matter, and to indicate to the General Assembly one or two considerations that should be held in view in settling the vexed question of choosing a Senator.

There are several special matters that we think the Legislature should consider in choosing a Senator, and we call attention to them generally and abstractly, making no personal application of the conditions. The truth is, that the prominent candidates are all men of sufficient average ability and character for the office.

We do think that a Senator should be elected who is in accord with the large body of the State Democracy, who represents its principles, wishes and sentiments, and who will not antagonize or misrepresent them. He should be an exponent of its policy as well as its convictions. This is a much more important matter than it may seem at casual first flush. We must have a man in harmony with our past struggles, as well as in unison with our aims and projects. No matter how shining the qualities of a candidate, if he is not a representative man, we can be better served with even a less able but more suitable choice. We shall make a great mistake to send any man to the United States Senate who is in antagonism with the hopes and beliefs of the dominant Democratic party in the State. However brilliant his abilities, we [illegible] hereafter in the com- [illegible] that we did not elect a representative Democrat.

As our object in choosing a Senator is utility to the State, we must pick a man the least burdened with embarrassments and drawbacks, and the one most freighted with capabilities of benefit. We need an unprejudiced, practical, resolute, energetic spirit, as free from hampering antecedents as possible, true to principle, but no slave to theoretic abstractions, and alive to the substantial needs of the State. We are in a new era—an era of bold achievements and novel progress—and we must have a man apace with the age, while reverently cherishing the sanctities of the past and a vassal to the exactions of truth and right. The man who gets this office will have grand opportunities for doing the State good. Georgia seeks her own redemption and the vindication of right.

She seeks her own illustration and regeneration, and with that, the vitality of political truth and the rights of men and States. We want a senator who can help these great things. The issue rises above personal considerations. It dwarfs all petty individualisms.

We insist with all our earnestness that no man shall be elected on the idea of rebuking or condemning the party for its action in the late Presidential contest. If this is to be the issue, the party must, in self respect, select a man who represented that movement. This must be clearly understood, so that, however the election goes, its results will, in no way, shape or form, directly or by intimation, mean a condemnation of the party, or a vindication of those who opposed it. If an issue of that sort is to be made, let the party speak in thunder tones its unqualified re-indorsement of its course. We do not wish to be misunderstood on this point. The action of the party in the late contest was the grandest act of patriotic devotion to right ever recorded, and by no word or action does it intend a self-condemnation of itself for that sublime patriotism.

We write this in, perhaps, excess of caution, but to prevent the possibility of misconception.

Bulwer.

The earliest literary recollections of the writer are connected with Bulwer. The way we used to pore over the delightful fictions of Bulwer in our younger days, is a memory to us to be cherished. And the news of his death a day or two ago, which we have been unable to comment upon earlier, brought a feeling of almost personal sadness.

Bulwer filled a large place in the world as a literary genius. He wrote successfully in every branch of literature. As novelist, historian, essayist, poet, dramatist, political writer, he was prolific and successful.

Sir Edward George Earle Lytton Bulwer was the youngest son of Gen. Bulwer, and was born in 1805. He was therefore 67 years old at his death.

His first publication was a prize poem at twenty years old, on sculpture. The work that brought him brilliantly before the world was Pelham, written and published when he was twenty-three. It was a witty, glittering fiction, and established his fame at once. It is a biography of a man of the world who, under the fopperies of the dandy carried a warm heart, a bold will and a wise brain.

In rapid succession followed one of the most superb series of novels ever penned and published. The main portion of his earlier fictions were brilliant and thrilling but based upon a morbid philosophy and permeated by the sickly virus of a diseased imagination. They inculcated false views of life and dealt in unnatural, unreal and over-strained sentiments of love and pleasure. His Ernest Maltravers, Alice, Night and Morning, Disowned, Devereaux, Zanoni, Eugene Aram, Lucretia and others are of this stamp. They are books of power and interest, full of beautiful word-painting and eloquent thought, but unsafe and morbid.

The two, Eugene Aram and Lucretia are curious delineations of intellectual evil.

Coming amid these earlier productions of this questionable, though attractive character, were two of the most exquisite books ever written—the Pilgrims of the Rhine and the Last Days of Pompeii.

Later, his genius took a turn for the better. A succession of historical novels exhibited improved powers and enlarged his fame. Rienzi, Harold, and the Last of the Barons, were all splendid emanations of his maturing powers. These were published between forty and forty-five years of age.

At this point his genius seems to have undergone a radical and beneficial change. He was silent for a while, and then re-appeared with the most masterly fictions of the age, books not only brilliant and imaginative, bu pervaded with correcter views of life an breaking a purer and more christian philos phy. His Caxtons was the initiatory we of this series, a book that we love to read t this day for the hundredth time. My novel and "What Will He Do With It" followed in the same admirable view.

As a dramatist, his Lady of Lyons and Richelieu are among the most popular of modern plays.

His historical works are England and the English and Athens, both full of research and glistening with fine thoughts. Among his poems are St. Stephens, New Timon and King Arthur.

He is said to have nearly completed another novel, which would have been greatly welcomed by the reading world.

As a politician Bulwer achieved some celebrity. He entered Parliament at 26, and was repeatedly returned. He was Colonial Secretary under the Derby administration. Some of his speeches were very powerful.

In 1866 he was raised to the peerage and made Baron Lytton.

In his wedded relations he was unhappy. He married early and had two children. A daughter died young. His son, as Owen Meredith, achieved literary note. He lived unhappily with his wife, and, finally, separated from her. She was a woman of violent temper.

Unlike his great contemporary—Dickens—he was born to affluence. Like Dickens, he will live as long as the English language is read.

THE Wilmington Star has this to say about one of General Gordon's speeches during the Greeley campaign:

It is firm, dignified, manly in sentiment and utterance; profound in its conception of the duty of the Democratic party in this crisis, and truly noble in its forms of expression, which are at times electric and lofty. It is the speech of the scholar, the thinker, the orator and the patriot, and is an honor even to the head and heart of Georgia's greatest son, than whom, in our estimation, with one possible exception, the South has no greater purer or truer man.

Truth vs. Falsehood.

Editors Constitution: In your issue of the 31 we find an extract from the Official Report of the Surgeon-General of the United States army, in which he says that the proportion of deaths among the white soldiers was one in 130—that among the negro or black soldiers one in 65. This is truth, and is corroborated by the reports of the sextons of Atlanta, Macon, Augusta, Charleston, Savannah, New Orleans, and one hundred other cities. They, like Indians, are dying out, and will become extinct in a few centuries, by being forced into a false position by a fanatical government.

The Rev. Mr. Healy, of New Orleans, is a missionary from the North to Louisiana, and is now lecturing in New England to raise more funds to christianize the negroes.

[illegible] and now number half a million more than when in a state of slavery. This is false and smacks of 30 pieces of silver. General O. O. Howard and his cats paws proclaim the same untruth and for the same purpose.

I have spent ten years in collecting statistics from hundreds of sources, both radical and democratic, regarding the relations to the present and past status of the negro, and know the assertion is false. Why was the census report of 1870 not published for the ensuing Congress, as has been usual, and as law requires? Simply because it developed a fact that the government officials did not want known to the people. They changed the census of the negro, and ten months later published a falsehood.

M. S.

The Bullock Judges.

Editors Constitution: Thinking men are asking the question, "Why does Governor Smith, who has so recently sworn to support the Constitution, allow so many judges and solicitors to remain in office in violation of the fundamental law?"

Every judge of the Superior Court, who was appointed in 1868 for the term of four years; every solicitor-general who was appointed in 1868, and one judge of the Supreme Court, are now in office in opposition to the Constitution of the State. Some thirty officers are holding office in violation of the Constitution, and each one sworn to support it! What a spectacle for the lovers of constitutional liberty!

No one will pretend that either of the officers mentioned is in office legally, according to the provisions of the Constitution. The Constitution says that said officers shall hold their offices for four years. It does not give another day under any circumstances. When the Constitution says a judge shall hold his office for four years, does it mean four years and as much longer as the Governor shall think proper? Who has the hardihood to assert it? Where does Governor Smith get authority to keep men in office longer than the Constitution authorizes? If he can do it one week he can do it his whole term of four years. And suppose the Governor had a favorite in office—the attorney general, for illustration—and he was satisfied the Senate would not confirm if an appointment was made, could he keep that officer in office four years longer than the Constitution allows?

But it is said that the Legislature has declared that these officers shall remain in office until their successors are appointed and qualified. But the Constitution does not so declare; and where does the Legislature obtain the power to extend the term of a judge or solicitor? If the legislative department of the government can do such a thing for one day, what constitutional limitation is there to the exercise of such a power? A judge can, under such a law, be as constitutionally kept in office twenty-four years as he can for four years and a day. The principle is the same.

It may be said that such a violation of the Constitution is harmless. No violation of the Constitution can be harmless. That is impossible. The only safety of the people lies in the strict enforcement of that instrument. One disregard of its provisions is an invitation to another; and all officers should be held to a rigid enforcement of all its provisions. To hold that the Governor can keep a man in office one day longer than the Constitution justifies is to give him unlimited power in that direction.

There is another question in connection with this that is worthy of consideration. The Constitution provides, that at the first appointment of judges of the Superior Courts, under the Constitution, one-half shall be appointed for four and the other for eight years; but all subsequent appointments, except to fill unexpired terms, shall be for eight years.

The act creating the Rome Circuit declared that the first appointment of judge for that circuit should be for four years. Governor Bullock appointed Judge Harvey for eight years. It is now said that Governor Smith has determined that Bullock was limited in his appointment to the four years mentioned in the act, and that he intends to appoint a successor to Judge Harvey at the present session of the Legislature. Let us examine this a little. Judge Harvey was not appointed at the first appointment under the Constitution.

The circuit was created afterwards, and his appointment was a "subsequent" one, and the Legislature has no more power to shorten the constitutional term of office which the Governor was required to make than it has to lengthen it. The Governor could no more have made a "subsequent" appointment for a shorter time than eight years than he could have extended it to sixteen; and if Governor Smith should attempt to violate the Constitution by turning Judge Harvey out of office, the writer sincerely hopes that the Senate will stop him, and if that branch of the legislative department shall fail in its duty, it is hoped that a case will be made and let the people see if the Supreme Court will not "scotch the snake," if it does not kill it.

If the writer had the legal power, he would turn out of office most of Bullock's appointees before sunset. But the Constitution must be upheld no matter what Bullock did. If Bullock's appointees are not worthy and well qualified, that gives no pretext to violate the Constitution.

Senators, uphold the Constitution at all hazards.

Highly Important About the Cotton Tax.

The Atlantic and Great Western Canal.

WASHINGTON, January 21.—This morning the Ways and Means Committee of the House met and had a long discussion upon the cotton tax bill. The debate lasted several hours. The discussion and result of it were contrary to general expectation. Every member of the committee opposed strongly the present bill, and the report of the committee will be unanimously against it. One of the members thinks that the tax should be refunded to producer on cotton exported, on actual proof that the identical cotton produced by him was exported. But such proof is practically impossible. On the other hand another member thinks two-thirds of the tax should be repaid to the producer without requiring of him any proof of exportation. Every member of the committee seems determined upon the course of opposing utterly any payment that will find its way into the hands of the lobby.

THE GREAT WESTERN CANAL.

The argument of Colonel Frobel in favor of the Atlantic and Great Western Canal has been printed. It was done by order of the House committee on commerce. The friends of the canal are very hopeful.

BILLS THAT WILL PROBABLY PASS.

A special to the New York Tribune, says that it is very probable that the bills in aid of the Niagara Ship Canal, the James River, and Kanawha, and Atlantic and Great Western Canal, will pass during the present session of Congress.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, January 21.—Cabinet met. Routine of business unimportant.

Mr. Howe has been re-elected Senator from Wisconsin.

G. S. Wright, from South Carolina, who was convicted of violating the enforcement act, has been pardoned; also, C. W. Landon, convicted of infringement on the Revenue laws in Missouri.

Gen. W. L. McMillan, Senator elect of the fusion Legislature for Kelloggs vacancy, has arrived here. He served as surgeon in the Russian army during the Crimean war, and was decorated by the Czar for distinguished services and commanded a regiment of Ohio Volunteers during our civil war, and attained the rank of Brevet Major General. After the war he settled in Carroll parish, Louisiana, as a cotton planter. He was elected to the House and Senate of Louisiana as a Republican, to which party he has persistently adhered. He was not identified with the Liberal Republican party during the recent canvass. General McMillan married a sister of Governor Dennison, of Ohio.

Mr. McMillan will not present his credentials until Mr. Ray, his competitor, elected by the Pinchback Legislature, shall arrive, they having agreed that neither should take advantage of the other by earlier arrival here.

Cameron is re-elected Senator from Pennsylvania.

PROBABILITIES.

For the New England States, winds shifting to northwesterly and easterly on Wednesday, with falling temperature, rising barometer, and clearing weather, accompanied by occasionally light snow. For the South Atlantic and Middle States, a rising barometer, fresh to brisk westerly to northerly winds and clearing weather, with falling temperature over the latter, and possible areas of light snow over the northern portion. For the Gulf States, a falling barometer, somewhat higher temperature, southeasterly and southerly winds and increasing cloudiness, with possibly threatening weather. From Tennessee northward over Ohio and the southern of Michigan and Wisconsin, the wind is shifting to southerly and easterly, with rising temperature, cloudy weather, and probably light rain for the northwest and a portion of Michigan and Wisconsin, easterly to northerly winds, cloudy weather and snow. For the Northwest, winds shifting to northerly and westerly, with rising barometer, falling temperature, and clearing but probably cloudy weather, a portion of the afternoon. Telegraphic reports from Minnesota and Dakota are missing.

CALIFORNIA.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 21.—Additional reports from the scene of Friday's battle with the Modoc Indians represent that ten of the white troops were killed and wounded.

Lieutenant Roberts, of Fairchilds command cannot live.

The Modocs fought with the greatest desperation, springing from rock to rock, picking off soldiers and climbing many of them to hide themselves till darkness afforded means for their escape.

The troops made several charges along the line of the lava beds, but were repulsed. The howitzers could not be used to any advantage, owing to a dense fog. Captain Jack has the strongest natural position in the country.

LOUISIANA.

NEW ORLEANS, January 21.—In the Kellogg Legislature the House resolution expelling nine members was postponed a week.

W. A. Wetmore telegraphs H. V. Ogden, a member of the Louisiana Commission at Washington, as follows:

In his statement to the President, as published in the telegrams this morning, Attorney-General Williams says on the morning of the 22 of November, Elmore proceeded with an armed mob and seized the 8th District Court before the hour to which it had adjourned. This statement is utterly false, having been duly elected Judge of the 8th District Court by a majority of over ten thousand votes, and commissioned and sworn I opened the Court without objection. There was no mob present armed or unarmed.

About half an hour afterward Judge Debbell appeared with ex-Sheriff Lanvert, and attempted to take possession of the court. Thereupon the court ordered Harper, the recognized sheriff, to eject them. This was done, and Harper is declared sheriff in all of the courts.

MIDNIGHT DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, January 21.—In the Senate to-day, Mr. Sherman, from the Committee on Finance, reported, as an amendment to the bill to require national banks to restore their capital when impaired, and to amend the national currency act—said bill being the original bill reported from the committee on the 15th instant—a proviso permitting savings banks heretofore authorized by Congress to use the word national in their corporate name, to continue to do so.

Mr. Morrill of Vermont reported from the Finance Committee an original bill authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to refund the deferential duties on articles actually on shipboard in French vessels destined for the United States on the 5th of November, 1872.

The Florida Legislature voted for Senator to-day. No choice. The civil rights bill passed the Senate, two conservative Senators voting with the majority.

Sketch of Mrs. Gaines.

Mrs. Gaines is the great female character in New Orleans. George Alfred Townsend gives a sketch of her in the Chicago Tribune, as follows:

She is a small, plump, bright-eyed woman, and she has been the heroine of a very heroic lawsuit, which she has personally conducted, raising money for the purpose to the amount of half a million, recovering nearly a million, and with all the probabilities in her favor of getting a million more. But if she were to get what she would receive under other conditions than those of Democratic public opinion, she would possess half the city of New Orleans in its most valuable part, and be a wealthier woman than Miss Burdett Coutts, whom Wellington endeavored to marry out of covetousness to her fortune.

The home of this lady is in New York city, but she spends much of her time in New Orleans, where she has strong friends and strong enemies, almost equal in number. Her suit has involved many of her intimate friends, from whom she has borrowed money to pay lawyers' fees and court fees. Her second husband, General Gaines, believed implicitly in the merits of her case, and gave her two hundred thousand dollars to fight it out. She has been twice married, and to excellent men both times, and I was told there that the brother of her first husband had helped her with nearly the whole of his funds. There is a dash, piquance and nimbleness about this woman which distinguishes her as one of the queens of her sex. She is said to be about sixty years of age, but would pass for forty, and while her education is defective, she is a natural authoress and lawyer, and can write a stinging brief, where sauce and justice are mixed together.

She is just the sort of woman to be identified with New Orleans—provincialism and cosmopolitanism mingling in her as amongst many of these old habitants. Her mother had married a French bigamist, and discovering the fact after she had reached New Orleans, proposed to marry again the great Daniel Clarke, who was one of the wealthiest men of the South. He was one of the [illegible] property holders in New Orleans and represented that territory in Jefferson's administration. Clarke was smitten with the beauty of the French lady, and contracted a secret marriage with her—made secret in order to anticipate a divorce from his French predecessor

But while he was absent in Washington city, his relatives and connections, who had expected to get his money, told him that his wife was unfaithful, and hired her lawyer to tell her that her marriage with Clarke was not legal. Having a natural affection for man, the French lady proposed to take a third husband. This offended Clarke, and it seemed to confirm the lies which had been said against this lady; and meantime his daughter was born—the present Mrs. Gaines—for whom he maintained affection, so that while he let his wife slide, he gave a very considerable sum of money to a man in Wilmington, Del., to be used and applied to the education of his daughter, and at her maturity to present her with the principal. She has been all the years of her maturity fighting the courts and the lawyers, and half of New Orleans.

A GOOD STORY.—Dr. Willett, lecturing in Boston the other night, told a droll story of himself. He said that at one time, when he was a connoisseur in bird stuffing, he used to criticise other people's bird stuffing severely. Walking with a gentleman one day, he stopped at a window where a gigantic owl was exhibited.

"You see," said the Doctor to his friend, "that there is a magnificent bird utterly ruined by unskillful stuffing. Notice the mounting; execrable, isn't it? No living owl ever roosted in that position. And the eyes are fully a third larger than any owl ever possessed."

At this moment the stuffed bird raised one foot and solemnly blinked at his critic, who said very little more about stuffed birds that afternoon.

☞ Seventy-six per cent. of the weather predictions for 1872, made by the signal service of the War Department, proved to be correct.—Exchange.

☞ Mr. Gladstone, the Prime Minister of England, in a recent speech in Liverpool, said that more wealth had been accumulated in that country since the commencement of the present century than in all the preceding ages from the time of Julius Cæsar; and again, at least as much wealth was created within the last twenty years as in the preceding fifty years.

OBITUARY.

STONE—Died, at his residence in Walton county, Georgia, December 25th, 1872, William N. Stone, aged 68 years, leaving a wife and five children to mourn his loss. He was a member of the Methodist Church thirty years. He has long been the subject of deep affliction, which he did endure with Christian fortitude and resignation—now he has gone to reap the reward that awaits all the finally faithful. Brother Stone was not afraid to meet the grim monster, death, for it had long lost its sting. This patient and good man has been standing long on the banks of cold Jordan, where wave upon wave was passing by, yet he remained immovable. He was a brother of integrity, given to hospitality—a kind husband, father and neighbor. His seat in the church was vacant only when deprived by affliction. His house was a home for true ministers. He was always ready and willing to administer to their wants and necessities. He has left many friends to mourn his loss, but not as those who have no hope. We would say that he is now with kindred spirits in that happy home, free from all pain and sorrow. Dear Father in Israel has left us. Now, dear children, obey his commands. Even while he is dead he yet speaketh. Seek the lost while he may be found. Call ye upon him while he is near. Father Stone lived the life of the righteous and died the death, after a long and painful and protracted illness. Oh, may we all live as he has lived and die as he has died and meet our father and brother in glory. Our father in Israel has gone, the mortal conflict has passed, the battle is fought, the victory is won and he is crowned at last.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.—Subscribers in the Fourth and Seventh Wards, will please call at the office for their papers. Our carriers for these routes are sick. We will try [illegible] as soon as possible.

MR. J. N. SMITH [illegible] associated in the proprietorship of the A[illegible] with Mrs. D. A. Sasseen. The management [illegible] The genial Martin still blossoms in [illegible] behind the clerk's desk.

AMENDE.—It was the "Union Travelers" Society and not the Mutual Aid Society who got into trouble in the 1024th District about hall rent. We make this correction in order to set the "Mutual Aid" all right.

GARRETT & BRO—We call attention to the advertisement of Messrs. Garrett & Brother. They have removed to the new building on Alabama street, opposite the passenger depot. With enlarged storage capacity, a side track and ample facilities, they are prepared to offer all the inducements possible to cash buyers. Their reputation as energetic and reliable wholesale produce and commission merchants is well established in this State.

PERSONAL.—The Washington Republican of Wednesday says:

"The talented authoress, Mrs. Westmoreland, of Georgia, arrived at the Arlington several day ago en route South. There was an informal entertainment given in her honor by Mrs. Bouligny, at whose residence were gathered several distinguished literateurs."

We are pleased to state that Mrs. W. has returned to her home in this city.

EMIGRATION MEETING.—Quite a number of colored men assembled at the City Hall last night. The meeting was call by "the Workman's Club" to consider the subject of emigration. Wilson Holmes was in the chair, and Zac Rice acted as Secretary.

Tunis G. Campbell addressed the meeting, stating that if the colored people were to band together like the white people, they would have no occasion to emigrate. But the inequality of the laws forced them to leave. He spoke of his numerous arrests, election trials, etc.

The sentiment of the meeting was against emigration. The meeting adjourned without any definite action.

AMUSED.—This reporter, yesterday, could but smile at a verdant youth from the country who went into a barber shop to have his hair cut. Under the gentle manipulations of the barber, and influenced by the eloquence of the knights of the razor, the young man had his eye brows dyed. Upon offering to pay, he found that the price was some three or four dollars and he had but twenty-five cents. The matter was finally settled by the transfer of a pocket book, or something else. With his eye brows black, his auburn locks glittering with pig lard, scented with peppermint, he looked as happy as a railroad conductor with a plenty of passengers who had paid their fare in cash and not in tickets.

RELIEVE THE NEEDY.—A former resident of Atlanta, who now lives in a distant city, was here day before yesterday, and with a truly generous heart he handed a friend fifty dollars to be expended in distributing fuel to the poor of Atlanta. The friend to whom this money was given for the purpose has taken pains to search out a number of deserving poor who are really objects of charity, and has made arrangements to send fuel to them which will assist them very much.

Remember the poor. They have suffered greatly during this cold weather and will yet suffer more. He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord. While you are enjoying your cosy comforts at home, and partaking of sumptuous repasts, many around you are suffering for the commonest necessaries of life. A small contribution will gladden some lacerated hearts.

CORRECTION.—In making up the evening edition on Monday evening, the following bills on the first reading were omitted from the proceedings of the House:

"Mr. Peabody, of Muscogee—To regulate the practice in the Supreme Court.

Mr. Howell, of Fulton—To appropriate $1,000 for the relief of J. M. Allen and J. T. Wilson, of Lee county, Ala., for the capture of C. C. Reese.

Mr. Clark, of Richmond—To amend the act incorporating the Augusta and Louisville railroad company, by increasing the capital stock from $[illegible] to $5,000,000

Mr. Latham, of Campbell—To authorize the grand jury of Douglass county to allow compensation to the ordinary sheriff and clerk of said county for extra service."—REPORTER.

MANUFACTURERS IN COUNCIL.

They Resolve to Organize.

Speeches by Senator Steadman and J. C. Kimball.

There was a large and respectable gathering of the Manufacturers at their Hall adjoining the CONSTITUTION office last night. Owing to indisposition the President, J. C. Peck, was absent.

Dr. S. C. Hitchcock was called to the chair, and J. S. Peterson requested to act as Secretary.

J. J. Toon offered a resolution inviting Hon. Enoch Steadman to deliver an address on the manufacture of cotton fabrics, next Tuesday night, which was adopted.

Hon. Enoch Steadman being present, expressed his hearty sympathy with the objects of the meeting.

J. J. Toon, from the Committee on Organization, on motion, read the report of the Committee recommending the organization of the Atlanta Manufacturer's Association, with a President, two Vice-Presidents, a Recording Secretary, a Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer, with appropriate standing committees. The report was adopted, but the election of officers was postponed until next Tuesday night

Mr J C Kimball, David McBride and Mr Brockins, made interesting remarks. As the subjects discussed by them will be embodied in articles, we omit a synopsis of them.

The meeting adjourned until Tuesday night next, at half-past seven o'clock, when a permanent organization will be made.

ON Monday night Joe Jefferson went to pass into DeGive's, when the door-keeper, who did not know him, told him he could not get in without a ticket.

"Must I have a ticket?" exclaimed Rip.

"Yes sir-ree. Can't afford to let you pass without one," replied the vigilant doorkeeper.

"Don't you pass the profession?" queried Rip.

"Not unless I know them," said the ticket-taker.

"I am Joe Jefferson," whispered the old veteran.

"Well, go in old man, and get shaved," stuttered out the bewildered ticket-taker. Jefferson presented him with a medal for his vigilance.

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,
ATLANTA, GA., January 21st, 1873.

Messrs. J. P. Logan, J. H. James, L. E. Bleckley and others:

GENTLEMEN: Your note inviting me to deliver an address on the subject of Public Education, at such a time and place as may suit my convenience, is before me. I kindly accept the invitation and name Thursday night next at half past seven o'clock, as the time, and the Hall of the House of Representatives as the place.

Very respectfully yours,

CHEAP AND PLEASANT TRIP TO NEW ORLEANS.—By reference to the advertisement of Capt. W. J. Houston, General Passenger Agent of the Atlanta and New Orleans "Short Line," in to-day's paper, it will be seen that this popular route, via. Montgomery, has effected arrangements with the Pullman Palace Car Company, to run a through train of their fine cars from Atlanta to New Orleans, to accommodate the immense number of visitors who will attend the Mardi Gras carnival. Tickets from Columbus to New Orleans and return, good from February 20th to March 10th, 1873, on all passenger trains will be sold by the Western Railroad of Alabama for $19 73, which is half price. Captain Houston, the general agent of the line, desires all who wish sleeping car berths, to either let him know, or to notify Mr. Bacon, agent here, so that he can communicate daily the number and secure the requisite number of berths for our own citizens and those of the surrounding country, who can then take sleeping car at Opelika. Captain Houston is making every effort to render the proposed trip a complete success; and while the line is fortunate in securing the services of so energetic an agent, the traveling public are equally lucky in dealing with so accommodating a gentleman.

All who go will enjoy the trip to their heart's content, and the rate is so low that very many can afford it.—Columbus Sun.

DE GIVE'S.—Dazzled again last evening with a large, fashionable and appreciative audience, drawn there by the Magician, Joe Jefferson. Having referred to Mr. Jefferson's rendition of Rip Van Winkle in our last issue, an elaborate analysis of his impersonation is unnecessary. He came before the audience last night with augmented strength and power of determination. In fact he infused such magnetic feeling into the character, that the audience all but realized an actual Episode from life, instead of the creation of Irving's fancy. In Jefferson's rendition of Boucicault's version of Rip Van Winkle, there is an exquisitiveness of art and nature unsurpassed by any other actor.

Mr. Jefferson is supported by a good company. Mrs Germon was good in her personation of "Gretchen." She bore up bravely against the roystering husband, and forgave much that was hard in her woman's heart; but she rose up grandly in rebellion at last, and drove him forth for a sleep that lasted twenty years, stern remorse came soon, and in her manifestations of this, she was all the wife and mother again. Mr. P. Anderson as "Derrick" deserves special commendation. Miss Lizzie Glenn as "Little Hendrick,", and Miss Bessie Germon as "Little Meenie," acquitted themselves with much credit. The "Meenie Van Winkle, of Miss Nellie Jones, gave pleasant evidence of culture. Her struggles of duty between father and mother were well conceived and naturally rendered.

As the curtain fell at the conclusion of the last acts the unanimous verdict of the audience was, that they would like to witness again, Mr. Jefferson's "Rip Van Winkle," with its humorous and pathetic representations, and the regret was, that his engagement was limited to two nights in our city.

MORNING PISTOL PRACTICE

Uncomfortable Close Quarters.

Yesterday morning about 3 o'clock Peachtree street was startled by the report of three pistol shots fired in rapid succession near the corner of Line and Peachtree streets. The crashing of glass followed the shots. Three policemen standing at the corner were startled, and one of them had reason to be so.

It appears that some burglariously designing person, about the hour of one o'clock, threw a rock weighing several pounds through the glass window at the corner of Line and Peachtree streets, in the hardware store of Clarke & Co. The rock passed through the glass in the outside window, (the glass very thick) shattering it very much, and through the glass of the inside window, and fell on the floor.

Policeman D. M. Queen, L. G. Holland, and M. A. Parker, discovered what had been done, and suspecting the design of the parties, stopped at the corner and watched events. About 3 o'clock policeman Queen was up at the window explaining the direction the rock had taken to the others, and standing against the iron post in the corner. A piece of the shattered glass fell inside with a clatter. This aroused one of the clerks sleeping up stairs, Mr. Cunningham, who, gathering his revolver, came down into the store. He imagined the burglars to be at work in the cellar, but spying the outlines of policeman Queen at the window, he fired three times in rapid succession. One ball went to the left of the iron post, and another to the right, missing Mr. Queen some five or six inches on either side. The third ball struck the iron post and was flattened as thin as a wafer. The glass was perforated and shattered in several places. The escape of Mr. Queen was miraculous.

Burglars may as well be convinced that there is danger in trying to burglarize the store of Messrs. Clark & Co. They will surely meet with a warm and fitten reception.

RULES FOR THE GOVERNMENT OF THE POLICE.—The following are the rules adopted for the government of the police force of Atlanta.

SECTION 1. As directed by the Mayor and Council The police force of the city will be divided into two watches—tour of duty to be twelve hours for each watch.

SEC. 3. The members of each watch will assemble at the station-house promptly twenty minutes before the hour for duty, for roll call and inspection by the Lieutenant, and will then repair promptly to their several stations.

SEC. 4. The police force being the conservators of the peace and quiet of the city, will, at all times, whether immediately on duty or not, take cognizance of all disorders or violations of law, and promptly arrest or report the parties, as may be necessary.

SEC. 5. The police will, at all times, be courteous and polite in the discharge of every duty, and violence will be tolerated only when necessary to enforce obedience to law.

SEC. 6. Drinking and smoking while on duty, lounging on street corners, or visiting drinking saloons or other places where liquor is kept, except on duty, is positively forbidden.

SEC. 7. Each member of the police will at all times keep himself neat and clean, and appear for duty with boots or shoes nicely blacked, and with buck gauntlets.

SEC. 8. Drunkenness is positively prohibited. Drinking while on duty, and a violation of this section, will subject the offender to trial before Council.

A violation of this section will subject the offender to trial before Council.

SEC. 11 In order to observe [illegible] and preserve the peace and quiet of the city, the members of each watch will extend their visits to all parts of their wards, as far as practicable, during each tour of duty.

SEC. 12. Policemen reporting for duty will appear in full uniform, buttoned up, with belt and baton out, side of their dress. Failing to do so they will not be put on duty, and pay stopped for that day.

COTTON MANUFACTURING.—Will our readers glance over what "Brick Pomeroy" has to say in the last issue of his paper?

"God bless the women of Columbus! Let them now prevail upon others of their sex in the South to do likewise. Let the women of the South refuse to wear other fabrics than those made in their section of the country, and the day will soon come when the South will vie with New England in the wealth and worth of her manufactories and then achieve her independence. With the beautiful women of that example to encourage industries men are not patriotic who do not give the subject attention and support. There is no sense in paying a Northern railroad capitalist to transport raw cotton half-way across the continent to his mill—pay a Northern capitalist to make the cotton into cloth in England, then pay to have the goods brought back to the South to be worn; when they might as well be made near home and their profits saved in the country and people where the raw staple raised.

"A line of cotton mills in operation from Baltimore to St. Louis, would injure the lunatics and Monopolists of New England more than all the soldiers the South could ever raise—all the lines of forts and fortifications it could ever build. Again we say, God bless the women of Columbus. Their's is a glorious example."

At the conclusion of the argument in the above stated case, the court adjourned until 10 o'clock, A. M., to-morrow.

Fulton Superior Court.

This body met yesterday morning at half-past eight o'clock, as a number of our law-breakers will have very good reason to remember. The case of The State of Georgia vs. Henry Brown, charged with the offence of rape was taken up. The defendant was found guilty, but the verdict was set aside, and a new trial granted, on the ground that the evidence was not sufficient to sustain it.

The case of the State vs. Taylor Jenkins was put on trial, and a verdict of guilty was returned by the jury. This was a charge of larceny from the house, and the prisoner was sentenced to hard labor in the penitentiary for the space of five years.

The case of The State vs. John Greer, Marion Dodson, Turner Ivy, James Jenkins, Robert Willis, Sandy Wooten, Jerry Smith, and Robert Davis. Each of this interesting crowd was charged with the offense of burglary in the day time. The jury found them all guilty, and they were sentenced by his Honor to a year's luxurious repose in the county chain gang; the Court then adjourned until this morning

United States Bankrupt Court.

His Hon. Judge Erskine, held a term of the Bankrupt Court yesterday. Messrs. Hooper & Force, a firm doing business in Rome, Georgia, were, after argument, adjudged to be bankrupts. There was nothing else of importance transacted.

United States Commissioners Court.

United States Commissioner W B Smith had a busy time yesterday. Quite a number of persons were arrested at the instance of Mr. W. B. Whitmore who swore that he had reasonable grounds to believe that they were guilty of violating the United States Revenue Laws in reference to distilling ardent spirits. Their names are Wm. Bennett, George Westwist, William Harrison, O. D. Lidbith, Isaac Baily, Tandy W. Turner, Ransome Jones, J. F. Duncan, Gabrial E. Phillips, N. S. Phillips, James Gaddis Sam Lenherfelt, Michael Gaddis.

These parties were brought into town yesterday. Judge Smith commenced the investigation at the earliest moment, and disposed of the following cases before the hour of adjournment: Isaac Baily and Tandy W. Turner were each required to give bond of $500 for their appearance before the United States Court. N. S. Phillips was put under bond of $300 for his appearance, and Ransome Jones and James Gaddis were released. The Commissioner will continue the investigation to-day at 10 o'clock A. M.

Justice Courts.

All our local magistrates report their hands full of civil business. They report no criminal trials, yesterday; a number of criminal cases were pending in Notary Public Sasseen's Court but were not brought to trial.

Station House Report.

There were seven arrests by our police yesterday. Some of the offenders were old acquaintances of His Honor the Recorder, and will doubtless meet with distinguished consideration at his hands.

HOME BITTERS.—In the history of bitters in the United States, none have ever before grown into public favor so fast as the Home Stomach Bitters. To females they are especially beneficial. They are an infallible remedy for sick headache, inertia, want of appetite, and lassitude. Thousands of females have used them with the most happy effect. They are valuable in cases of indigestion and dyspepsia, and a sure preventive of all diseases arising from malarious causes. Withal they are very pleasant to taste, and recommended by many of the most eminent physicians in the whole country. Every person requiring a tonic or stimulant should try them.

WAITING.

I have three little angels waiting for me
On the beautiful banks of the crystal sea;
Not impatiently wait my darlings there,
For smiles light up their brows so fair;
And their little harps ring out so clear,
So soothingly sweet to faith's listening ear
And they live in the smile of the Savior's love,
Who so early called my darlings above.

I have three little angels waiting for me
On the beautiful banks of the crystal sea;
Forever free from sorrow and pain,
Spotless and pure from all earthly stain;
Never in erring paths to rove—
Safe in the bosom of infinite love,
Evermore, evermore walking in light,
Those beautiful angels robed in white.

I have three little angels waiting for me
On the beautiful banks of the crystal sea
When my weary heart is throbbing with pain,
And I fain would clasp my darlings again.
I look away from this earthly strand
To the beautiful fields of the "Better Land,"
I will think of the beautiful angels there,
And offer to God a thankful prayer.

I have three little angels to welcome me
When I too shall stand on the crystal sea;
When the Great Refiner His image may trace
In the heart He has won by His saving grace
And in the robes of Christ's own righteousness drest,
My soul shall seek the home of the blest—
On the beautiful banks of the crystal sea
My darlings, still waiting, shall welcome me.

"JOSEY" MANSFIELD IN PARIS.

Trouble Wherever She Goes.

Helen Josephine Mansfield, the brilliant young female who was the bottom of the Fisk-Stokes tragedy seems to be creating as great a sensation and much trouble in Paris as in New York. A recent letter says:

Aside from the report which was extensively circulated that Mrs. Mansfield lost thirty-seven thousand dollars by the failure of the Bowles Brothers, she has caused several law suits, some of which will eventually prove causus celebras, and even brought about a mortal combat between two Parisians, in consequence of which one of them, a journalist of some prominence, was severely wounded. The particulars of this affair are as follows: Mrs. Mansfield made her appearance at a performance of Fra Diavola. Mrs. Mansfield was gorgeously dressed in a suit of white satin, and the display she made was something unusual in Parisian society.

Her singular conduct and the sensation which she produced were not lost upon the numerous representatives of the press who attended the opera, and their comments upon the woman were anything but flattering. One of them, M. Xavier Dupont, an attachee of the sprightly little Vert-Vert, a gossipy sheet, which makes theatrical news a specialty, said, within the hearing of some of his colleagues, that he would give 'Mme. La Princesse, d'Erie,' as he called her, a good little notice in his paper.

Sure enough, the Vert-Vert next evening contained a paragraph about the occurrence, and here the trouble commenced. Early on the following morning, M. Xavier Dupont, as he was making his toilette, was called upon by an exceedingly well dressed stranger, who gave his name as M. Albert Saxe, of Bristol, and who informed the astonished journalist that he wished to see him about the paragraph concerning Mrs. Mansfield, which he said had given that beauteous woman the utmost offense. M. Dupont replied that he did not care a sou about that, and begged his visitor not to give himself any further concern about the matter, considering that the wishes or frowns of Mrs. Mansfield were of no interest whatever to the editor of the Vert-Vert.

Upon hearing which Mr. Saxe waxed wroth. He said he did not like to use harsh language, but if compelled to do so he would not shrink from it. The journalists then flared up, too. "Pray, sir, he said, stepping close up to Mr. Saxe, "what in the —— name is all this any business of yours? Who are you? I don't know you? There's the door, you miserable intruder! So saying, he pushed Mr. Albert Saxe towards the door and before that gentleman was able to offer any resistance, landed him rather unceremoniously in the hallway. The journalists went down to the office of the Vert-Vert, when he was called upon by two very snobbish-looking Englishmen, who informed him in very broken French that they came to see him in behalf of M. Albert Saxe, and, in effect, had been requested by that gentleman to challenge M. Dupont, for what had occurred in the morning at his house, to mortal combat.

M. Dupont, who had before stood on the dangerous spot yclept the field of honor, said he would fight M. Saxe provided the latter, upon inquiry, would prove a gentleman of standing and character sufficient to entitle him to any notice at his hands.

The necessary inquiries were made, and it was found that there was nothing derogatory to M. Saxe's character, except that he was a gambler and a sportsman. So M. Xavier Dupont signified to M. Saxe's friends his willingness to meet the challenger, and they agreed to fight the duel with broadswords.

The combat came off at Longchamps and after the two men had stripped to the waist they began slashing at each other with the utmost fury. Saxe wounded his adversary seriously in the left arm. The doctor then interfered, and the duel was ended. Few people knew of the affair, but somehow or other it was brought to the knowledge of the police, and two or three days afterwards both Saxe and Dupont were arrested and placed before the Tribunal of Correctional Police. They did not deny that they had fought a duel: thereupon the presiding judge lectured them severely, and then sentenced them to three days' solitary confinement.

THOSE little brothers! will we never hear the last of them? On the consummation of a recent marriage in an up-town family, a visitor unwisely observed to the youngster "You're a brother-in-law now, Tommy." SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP—SEAWEED TONIC and MANDRAKE PILLS. These are the only medicines that will cure Pulmonary Consumption. Dr. Schenck has been in constant practice over thirty years continually examining lungs, and knows his medicines, if properly taken, will cure consumption. His Mandrake Pills cleanse the liver and stomach; his Seaweed Tonic dissolves the food, stimulates the coating of the stomach and aids digestion; his Pulmonic Syrup ripens the matter, and nature throws it off without any exertion. Sterling's Southern Series
—OF—
Readers, Orators & Copy Books.

THE undersigned now own the plates of this POPULAR SERIES; and as they are the only Purely Southern School Books offered in the market, we submit that it is to the interest of Teachers to patronize them. Send for circulars of Special Terms to Teachers—VERY LIBERAL. Specimen copies sent free for examination.

Prof. Orr, the Superintendent of Education for Georgia, says of them:

Messrs. J. W. Burke & Co., Macon, Ga.—GENTLEMEN: I have given to the Sterling Series of School Books, which you have had the kindness to leave with me, such consideration as the limited amount of leisure at my command has allowed. With several books of the series I was already familiar, having added greatly to the interest of several public exhibitions, while engaged in active school work, by selections from their pages. While there ought not to be anything sectional in literature, I must be allowed to say that it is with feelings of both pleasure and pride that I find in the pages of these books so full a recognition of Southern talent. I am glad, too, to learn that their publication is to be transferred to our own State. Southern independence will be sooner achieved by producing, as far as possible, every necessary for the supply of all our wants, both material and mental, upon our own soil. I will only add that I would be pleased to see the books extensively used.
Respectfully yours,
GUSTAVUS J. ORR,
